Loans Without Interest

Chancellor Appeals To-British Public

LONDON, June 18 (Reuter). -In the House of Commons today, Sir Kingsley Wood, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was asked whether the Government would consider raising a public loan, free of interest, for war purposes.

Sir Kingsley Wood replied that the Government had already received such money from many public mind-ed citizens and institutions.

Many people had indicated their anxiety to show their patriotism this

Repayment After War

He therefore now appealed to any person or company who were willing to advance money to the country without interest for the term of the war, to send it to him.

He said that a certificate would be issued entitling the donor to receive re-payment three months after the conclusion of the peace treaty. The alternative procedure, particularly for those wishing to lend under £100, would be to make a Post Office Savings Bank deposit with instructions to surrender the interest to the Treasury. He invited persons and companies, who were willing to make loans for a lesser period than specified above, to communicate with the Treasury.

Seamen On Ferry Rescue Drowning Woman

Two deck-hands on a Kowloon ferry dived into the harbour. last night to rescue a Chinese woman who had fallen overboard. A European passenger helped apply artificial resuscitation on the way to the wharf.

The Solar Star was half-way to Kowloon on the 10.40 trip from Hongkong when passengers heard a splash and a cry. The ferry was immediately stopped and cruised slowly in a circle.

Passengers who crowded to the rails sighted the woman floating a few yards from the ferry. Two members of the ferry's crew, Li Tau and Li Kau, dived in and swam to-wards the drowning woman. In spite of her struggles, they swam back with her to the ferry which had sent a whistle summons for police assistance. The unconscious woman was help-

Like one of those heavy tanks Colonel Haze-Brown mentioned in his lecture as having won the last war-when he took the place of Mrs. Haze-Brown, who was to have spoken on Indian Customs— Father approached the tallboy. He tore open the door, crying; "I am a tldy-minded man, but....

"Hadn't we better go up to the attle and help Father. Otherwise you'll both be late."

"Funny things," says Mother, jumping up with her knitting under her arm, "I don't often forget things, but I cannot recollect just when it was Aunt Hilda...except that she left those dress study to your father."

"This attle is a disgrace," shouts Father, relighting a candle and spilling hot grease on his dinner trousers. "How can I find dress studs in a place like this? I'm a patient man, but. . ," He strikes the parrot cage with his free hand and brings down Aunt Hilda's oleographs of the Seasons against the marble washstand which stood in our bedroom before we had the b, and e, basin,

"Why!" said Mother, "What have we got here?"

It is Aunt Hilda. She stands upright, just like the photograph of her in the hall; and her eyes blink balefully in the candle light. I should think she is out of sorts, but I do not ask her how she is because I've never met her, of course,

"Why, Aunt Hilda," Mother begins, "I forgot all about you . . "Where are those dress studs?" Father interrupts, the thought of the town hall causing him to forget manners,

"We'll come to that later," snaps Aunt Hilds in an old and rather dlsagrecable voice.

CLIPPER ARRIVALS U.S. Aircraft Plants At Top Speed

"I visited nearly all the big air-eraft factories in America and found them so busy that they didn't know where to turn as they cannot enlarge their plants fast enough," said Mr. Leslie A. Lewis, United Aircraft Aviation Co. representative on arrival by the Honolulu Clipper yesterday. "They think it will take six months to turn fighting planes and bombers out at the required speed. The United Aircraft Company is building Vaught dive bombers and Pratt and Whitney engines in huge numbers for the Allies in Connecticut. The Lockheed Company has more than 2,000 planes building and combined, the alreraft companies have orders for 15,000 planes which they have not yet begun placing."

"Judging from the opinion, the United States is definitely going to get into the war. Mr. Roosevelt's jast speech almost amounted to a declaration of war." Mr. Lewis has been away from Hongkong for two months, six weeks of which he spent in the United States, as he made the journey both ways by Clipper. There were 41 passengers on the

Listener-ın

-Thirty Years ago there Was no Haw-Haw

EARLY in 1909 a white-haired village schoolmaster in Northamptonshire was living in a wonder world of his own discovery.

Science had found a new marvel-a method by which messages could be sent through the air for hundreds of miles without the aid of wires, carrier pigeons or beacon lights.

Frank Henry Wright, scientist, painter, astronomer, musician, writer-a lonely man in the isolated village of Buchebroc (vulgarised to Bugbrooke) Northamptonshire-had ferreted out the mystery of sound waves.

In the quiet of the night he listened to the secrets of the air-the "pin-ping" of the Morse code from hundreds of miles away.

Many months of failure preceded his moment of triumph, but early one March morning the secret was yielded to him.

Every morning his son had been posted at one end of the schoolroom to work a small, home-made electric tapper. His father was at the other end of the schoolroom, his eager eyes fixed on what seemed to be a compass.

Victory

On this particular morning there was a development which made the son's eyes open in astonishment. His usually dignified father suddenly flung up his arms with a shout: "I've got it-the hand has moved! Work that tapper!"

One day a pole, fifty feet high, was planted in the playground and reared its head above the school beech tree.

In 1910 the schoolmaster and his pupils were listening to Morse code messages from North Germany, France, Cleethorpes and Poldhu (Cornwall).

Home-made Apparatus

The copper wire induction coll was wound on a wooden rolling pin; the baseboard was an old kitchen tray; earthenware inkpots ponents were medicine bottles and jam jars.

The earth wires were passed through a window ledge by the medium of the neck of a vinegar "bottle" cracked off the main body." Earphones, the only items of real expenditure, were obtained from London.

News of the schoolmaster's radio leaked into the outer world. Letters of inquiry reached him from America, Australia, Canada, and other countries.

Learned scientists and professors visited the village school. They looked at the medicine bottles and jam jars, and listened at the earphones. Some of them admitted that pet theories had been upset.

Secret Attic

Frank Henry Wright was the first amateur radio listener in Britain. Throughout the war he listened-in. The authorities had, as they thought, removed all his equipment when the war broke out, but the village schoolmaster heard all the hot news first-hand in a secret attle at the school-house. He had no outside visible aerial. Frank Henry Wright died as the war ended. Radio was still then in its Morse code infancy. "I am convinced," he said to his son, "that soon people will speak to one another by wireless. I have occasionally heard human voices among the Morse,'

A young newspaper editor, still in his twenties, sits working throughout the night in an office in faraway Kuala Lumpur, Federated Malay States.

"I have bought a radio," he writes to me, "and can hear London clearly from seven in the evening until breakfast time the following morning. I can hear Big Ben striking 11- a.m."

That young man is Frank Henry Wright's grandson.

many what is she likely to gain and what to lose? In the first place her profit will depend on Germany. Italy is the junior partner of the Axis. But certain propaganda maps which were published at the time of the Munich crisis clearly, showed that Italy was to be rewarded with a large Mediterranean sphere of influence, including Southern France, Greece, Spain, and the whole North African littoral. But she was significantly not to be given Yugo-Slavia.

Hitler was to keep that as his Mediterranean exit.

More precisely Italy demands Tunisia in North Africa, the district round Nice on the French Riviera, where there is a considerable Italian-speaking minority, the controlling voice on the Suez Canal board and Corsica.

.To achieve this her participation in the war might be expected to take several forms. (1) Italy is attacking Southern France on land, but more effectively in the air.

(2) From Albania she might launch attacks into Yugo-Slavia and south-east into Greece. (3) Through Switzerland she might co-operate with Germany.

(4) From her air and naval bases she is attacking Malta and, from the Dodecanese Islands, the British and French forces in the Middle East and Cuprus.

On the other hand, Italy instantly lost:
(1) All her sea borne trade with the outside world by the closing of the Mediterranean at Gibraltar and Suez.

(2) Her Abussinian Empire. (3) Her North African province of Libya. This. will be attacked both by the French from Tunisia and the British from Egypt.

Italy's participation in the war may yet bring Turkey simultaneously in on the Allied side. This would effect the blockade of the Dardanelles against enemy ships and would be a counterweight to any Italian adventure in the Balkans.

The British and French navies are confident that they can deal with any Italian naval threat in spite of the fortified Dodecanese bases, the Island of Pantellaria and the possible use of the Balcaries by enemy warships. Britain and France have between them six naval bases in the Mediterrenean; France has Bizerta, Touton; Britain has Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria and Cyprus.

CHAMPIONSHIP OPEN AGAIN

(By "Birdie")

THE SPONTANEOUS response of the Hong-kong public to the War Fund opened by this newspaper and the South China Morning Post is wonderful, and in its generosity it brings to my mind the success that Henry Cotton and his fellow professionals are experiencing in similar tion Club in a series of exhibidirections at Home. At the time of writing, the tion swimming events this directions at Home. At the time of writing, the evening in the palatial swim-local Fund is over $100,000 (it is only a day and a ming pool at Victoria Barracks. half old) and in England, Cotton's exhibition matches on behalf of the British Red Cross Fund time to pick out their talent, has reached £14,000 ($224,000).

West of Scotland golfers maintain their record for high donations. On June 2 at Troon, Cotton partnered style and probably 50 yards free style. Troon), and over £400 was raised.

It may have started at Beaconsfield Club, Buckinghamshire, where Cotton collected a further Home Cricket £5 for holing a 4-foot putt for a 2, but the generosity of present golf spectators is finding outlet in offers for "eagles" and "birdies".

About 600 people followed the match at Troon during the morning, but it was greatly increased during the afternoon. MUNICH, June 18 (UP).—Hitler and Mussolini have agreed in their attitude regarding the French request for an armistice.

It is also indicated that they have decided upon the terms—widely expected to constitute unconditional capitulation-under which France will be allowed an armistice. FOUR-HOUR CONFERENCE ENDS

It has been officially announced: "The Fuehrer and II Duce have reached an agreement on the attitude both countries will take towards the French request for an armistice."

A four hour conference between the dictators concluded at 8 o'clock this evening.

The crowd waiting outside the conference hall burst into wild cheers and shouts as Mussolini and Hitler emerged on the balcony of the Fuehrer's house where they saluted and chatted on the prominent balcony facing a monument dedicated to the Nazi Socialists killed in the rise of the movement to power.

Dictators Leave Munich

After saluting the crowd again, both dictators again entered the house.

Shortly afterwards it was reported they had both left Munich for an unspecified destination and it was not made clear whether they left together or separately.

Semi-official quarters here said aside from the personal eminence of Marshal Petain and their respect for him, the terms of the armistice reflect, to some extent, the resentment of the Axis powers against France. It is indicated that this resentment is directed particularly against French politicians, more specifically those who opposed armies were at present opposing the Four Power Pact proposed by Mussolini both before and after Munich.

The dictators left the conference site in the same autotired but they continue to fight mebile and, as they drove away the crowd sang "Now we are all courageously in the very critical against England" and they "heiled" both men.

Loans Without Interest

Chancellor Appeals To

British Public LONDON, June 18 (Reuter). —In the House of Commons today, Sir Kingsley Wood; the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was asked whether the Government would consider raising a public loan, free of interest, for war purposes. Sir Kingsley Wood replied that the Government had already received such money from many public minded citizens and institutions. Many people had indicated their anxiety to show their patriotism this.

Repayment After War

He therefore now appealed to any person or company who were willing: to advance money to the country without interest for the term of the war, to send it to him.

He said that a certificate would be issued entitling the donor to receive re-payment three months after the conclusion of the peace treaty. The alternative procedure, particularly for those wishing tolend under £100, would be to-make a Post Office Savings Bank deposit with instructions to surrender the interest to the Treasury. He invited persons and companies, who were willing to make loans for a lesser period than specified above, to communicate with the Treasury.

Seamen On Ferry Rescue Drowning Woman

Two deck-hands on a Kowloon ferry dived into the hurbour last night to rescue a Chinese woman who had fallen overboard. A European passenger helped apply artificial resuscitation on the way to the wharf.

The Solar Star was half-way to-Kowloon on the 10.40 trip from Hongkong when passengers heard a splash and a cry. The ferry was immediately stopped and cruised slowly in a circle.

Passengers who crowded to the rails sighted the woman floating- a few yards from the ferry. Two members of the ferry's crew, Li Tau and Li Kau, dived in and swam to-wards the drowning woman. In spite of her struggles, they swam, back with her to the ferry which had sent a whistle summons for police assistance,

The unconscious woman was helped abound the ferry but the efforts of the crew could not revive her. 'An. unknown European passenger came down to the lower deck, knelt alongside the woman and applied artificial resuscitation. A water police launch arrived.

shortly afterwards and by the time the ferry reached Kowloon the woman was out of danger.
It is believed that the unknown passenger left without giving, the police his name or informing them of the help he had given.

. The woman, who is suffering from the effects of immersion and shock, was taken to Kowloon Hospital. Her condition is not serious.

"You must remember something about his dress stude, surely, Mother?"

How she kults when she is bewildered, or ready hours before she need be.

"They belonged to Aunt Hilde," she says. "And how long has Aunt Hilda been dead?" bellows Father, forcing that bottom drawer of the wardrobe on the landing where we keep the moments of stress. "Father knows perfectly well, of course," says Mother in a longsuffering, quiet way. "She passed over ever so quietly in her sleep, poor thing, and left him those dress atuds."

ENATHER drops some of the L' bowls down the stairs and we lose the thread of the conversation.

"I might as well ask Aunt Hilda herself as ask you anything," he cries, running about the hall collecting them. "But, my dear Henry, you are "Hadn't we better go up to the attic and help Father. Otherwise you'll both be late."

"Funny things," says Mother, Jumping up with her knitting under her arm. "I don't often forget things, but I cannot recollect just when it was Aunt Hilda...except that she left those dress study to your father."

"This attic is a disgrace," shouts Father, relighting a candle and spilling hot grease on his dinner trousers. "How can I find dress studs in a place like this? I'm a patient man, but. ..." "Why!" said Mother. "What have we not here?"

It is Aunt Hilda. She stands upright, just like the photograph of her in the hall; and her eyes blink balefully in the candle light. I should think she is out of sorts, but I do not ask her how she is because I've never met her, of course.

"Why, Aunt Hilda," Mother begins, "I forgot all about you . . . "Where are those dress studs?" Father interrupts, the thought of the town hall causing him to forget manners.

"We'll come to that later," snaps Aunt Hilda in an old and rather disagreeable voice.

A UNT now wants to know Awhat they have been doing and why, how Mother came to forget her, and why we have not been using her tallboy; and Mother says how will she explain about the flowers to the neighbours, and why didn't Aunt say where she was, or shout; but Aunt says why should she, even if she had known, she had been thinking, and If Henry (poor Father) ever

Listener-in

-Thirty Years ago there Was no Haw-Haw

EARLY in 1909 a white-haired village schoolmaster in Northamptonshire was living in a wonder world of his own discovery.

Science had found a new marvel—a method by which messages could be sent through the air for hundreds of miles without the aid of wires, carrier pigeons or beacon lights.

Frank Henry Wright, scientist, painter, astronomer, musician, writer—a lonely man in the isolated village of Buchebroc (vulgarised to Bugbrooke) Northamptonshire—had ferreted out the mystery of sound waves.

In the quiet of the night he listened to the secrets of the air-the "pin-ping" of the Morse code from hundreds of miles away. Many months of failure preceded his moment of triumph, but early one March morning the secret was yielded to him. Every morning his son had been posted at one end of the schoolroom News of the schoolmaster's radio to work a small, home-made electric tapper. His father was at the other end of the schoolroom, his enger eyes fixed on what seemed to be a compass,

Victory

On this particular morning there was a development which made the son's eyes open in astonishment. His usually dignified father suddenly flung up his arms with a shout: "I've got it-the hand has moved! Work that tapper!"

One day a pole, fifty feet high, reared its head above the school. the top branches of a neighbouring leaked into the outer world. Letters of inquiry reached him from America, Australia, Canada, and other countries.

Learned scientists and professors visited the village school. They looked at the medicine bottles and jam jurs, and listened at the earphones. Some of them admitted that pet theories had been upset.

Secret Attic

Frank Henry Wright was the first amateur radio listener in Britain. Throughout the war he listened-in. The authorities had, as they thought, removed all his equipment when the war broke out, but the village schoolmaster heard all the hot news first-hand in a secret attle at the school-house. He had no outside visible acrial. Frank Henry Wright dled as the war ended. Radio was still then in its Morse code infancy. "I am convinced," he said to his son, "that soon people will speak to one another by wireless. I have occasionally heard human voices among the Morse." A young newspaper editor, still in his twenties, sits working throughout the night in an office. in faraway Kuala Lumpur, Federated Malay States. "I have bought a radio," he writes to me, "and can hear London clearly from seven in the evening until breakfast time the following morning....I can hone Big Ben striking 11 a.m." That young man is Frank Henry Wright's grandson. "Pop" Wright.

LONDON, JUNE 18 (REUTER).—THE HOUSE OF COMMONS WAS CROWDED THIS AFTERNOON BY THOSE WHO WISHED TO HEAR MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL MAKE WHAT WAS REGARDED AS THE MOST IMPORTANT SPEECH OF THE WAR AND TO GIVE AN ACCOUNT OF THE DRAMATIC EVENTS WHICH LED TO FRANCE'S APPROACH TO GERMANY TO END THE HOSTILITIES.

"I spoke the other day," said Mr. Churchill, "of the colossal military disaster which occurred when the French High Command failed to withdraw the northern armies from Belgium at a moment when they knew that the French front had decisively broken at Sedan and on the Meuse.

B.E.F. Thrown Out of Action

"This delay entailed the loss of 15 or 16 French divisions and threw out of action for that critical period the whole of the British Expeditionary Force.

"Our Army and 120,000 French troops indeed were rescued by the British been decisively affected even if we Navy from Dunkirk but only with the loss of all their cannons, vehicles and modern equipment.

"This loss inevitably took some weeks to repair and, in the first two of those weeks, the battle for France was lost.

"When we consider the heroic resistance made by the French Army who were at heavy odds in this battle (cheers) and the enormous losses inflicted upon the enemy and the evident exhaustion of the enemy, it may well be thought that those 25 struggle and we should have found divisions of the best troops, best trained and equipped might have turned the scale. ourselves at the present time in a

MOROCCO

HERE is a map of what may possibly be the next big theatre of war—the Mediterranean Sea. . Now that Italy has come into the war with Germany what is she likely to gain and what to lose? In the first place her profit will depend on Germany. Italy is the junior partner of the Axis. But certain propaganda maps which were published at the time of the Munich crisis clearly showed that Italy was to be rewarded with a large Mediterranean sphere of influence, including Southern France, Greece, Spain, and the whole North African littoral. But she was significantly not to be given Yugo-Slavia. Hitler was to keep that as his Mediterranean exit. More precisely Italy demands Tunisia in North Africa, the district round Nice on the French Riviera, where there is a considerable Italian-speaking minority, the controlling voice on the Sucz' Canal board and Corsica. To achieve this her participation in the war might be expected to take several forms. (1) Italy is attacking Southern France on land, but more effectively in the air. (2) From Albania she might launch attacks into Yugo-Slavia and south-east into Greece,

(3) Through Switzerland she might co-operate with Germany.

(4) From her air and naval bases she is attacking Malta and, from the Dodecanese-Islands, the British and French forces in the Middle East and Cyprus.

On the other hand, Italy instantly lost: (1) All her sea borne trade with the outside world by the closing of the Mediterranean at Gibraltar and Suez.

(2) Her Abyssinian Empire. (3) Her North African province of Libya. This will be attacked both by the French from Tunisia and the British from Egypt.

Italy's participation in the war may yet bring Turkey simultaneously in on the Allied side. This would effect the blockade of the Dardanelles against enemy ships and would be a counterweight to any Italian adventure in the Balkans.

The British and French navies are consident that they can deal with any Italian naval threat in spite of the fortified Dodecanese bases, the Island of Pantellaria and the possible use of the Balearies by enemy warships. Britain and France have between them six naval bases in the Mediterranean; France has Bizerta, Toulon; Britain has Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria and Cyprus.

Lords' Statement LONDON, June 18 (Reuter).-Viscount Caldecote, Leader in the House of Lords, made a similar statement to that of Mr. Churchill in the House of Commons. Lord Caldecote mentioned the magnificent contribution by Dominions to our strength, and said the Government had received many messages from each of them.

He confined himself to quoting two -one from New Zealand pledging the Dominion to remain with Britain to the end and to render every possible assistance.

The other was from the Prime Minister of South Africa. It said: "Whatever the difficulties and trials ahead and however long the road to Archibald Wavell to the troops in the victory may be, we hope to follow it to the end in company with our Commonwealth friends and Allies."

CHAMPIONSHIP OPEN: AGAIN

(By "Birdie")

THE SPONTANEOUS response of the Hongkong public to the War Fund opened by this newspaper and the South China Morning Post is wonderful, and in its generosity it brings to my mind the success that Henry Cotton and his fellow professionals are experiencing in similar directions at Home. At the time of writing, the local Fund is over $100,000 (it is only a day and a half old) and in England, Cotton's exhibition Swimming matches on behalf of the British Red Cross Fund has reached £14,000 ($224,000).

West of Scotland golfers maintain their record for high donations. On June 2 at Troon, Cotton partnered Alexander Kyle (amateur champion) against Richard Burton (open champion) and James Adams (professional to the Royal Liverpool Club, Hoylake, and native of Troon), and over £400 was raised.

It may have started at Beaconsfield Club, Buckinghamshire, Where Cotton collected a further Home Cricket £5 for holing a 4-foot putt for a 2, but the generosity of present golf spectators is finding outlet in offers for "eagles" and

"birdies". About 600 people followed the match at Troon during the morning, but it was greatly increased during the afternoon. Burton enriched the fund by £15 when he "shot" on "eagle", while there were about half-a-dozen birdies which netted

Incidentally, while on the subject F. Bebbington, the British of auctioned balls-it was recently claimed that the sum of £106 5s. Empire XI could not save realised for a ball at Pollard's Hill was a record, but a member of Davyhulme Park G.C. writes in the press that in 1916-17 the Club auctioned three balls for charity and the first realised £35, the second against Cambridge. London, June 18. The Admiralty announced to-day that British mercantile losses through enemy action for the week ended on June 9, were nine ships totalling 41,536 tons. The Allies lost two ships totalling 952 tons, and neutrals two ships totalling 4,472 tons.

The British and Allies losses included about 5,000 tons lost during the combined operations off the French Channel ports.

German mercantile losses up to June 16 amount to about 837,000 tons and Italy's to 230,000 tons. The ratio of ships lost in convoy is one in 772. -Reuter.

Let us admit at once that there are certain technical difficulties which cannot be overcome. We are well aware of them-but they do not affect the character of the game in any way. Neither player sees more than his own hand while bidding and only his own hand and Dummy during play.

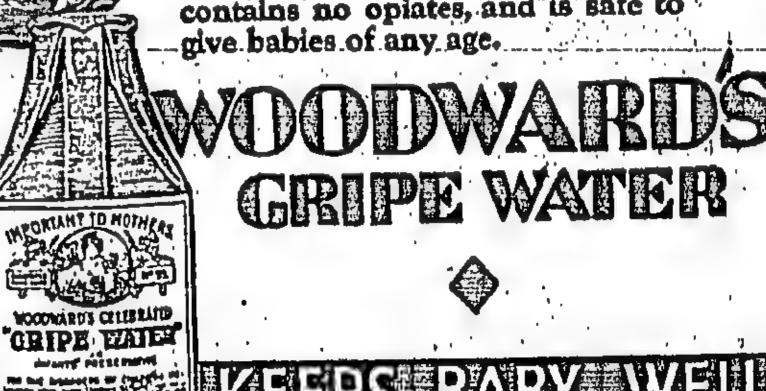

It is obvious that peculiar bidding, psychics and wild jump-overbids are no use in such a game, indeed, the hands have been very carefully selected

Germans' Resources Correspondent Points

London, June 18. Gordon Young, Renter special correspondent in Turkey, cables a letter to The Times in which he utters a warning against over-estimating the enemy's power and resources as we, in the past, underestimated them.

Out Danger Of Estimates

As Renter Berlin correspondent for three years under the Nazi regime, he points out that it has always been the Nazi method to devote all the available resource upon one objective before proceeding to the next. The tremendous force expended upon each objective does not denote that similar force can be simultaneously available elsewhere. The Germans have furiously expended men and materials in France and may be much nearer the end of their tether and more worried than they appear to be, he says, especially in view of the bad European harvests, and the Allied destruction of Nazi petrol supplies and aeroplanes. -Reuter.

MUNICH, June 18 (UP).—Hitler and Mussolini have agreed in their attitude regarding the French request for an armistice.

It is also indicated that they have decided upon the terms—widely expected to constitute unconditional capitulation—under which France will be allowed an armistice. FOUR-HOUR CONFERENCE ENDS

It has been officially announced: "The Fuehrer and II Duce have reached an agreement on the attitude both countries will take towards the French request for an armistice."

A four hour conference between the dictators concluded at 8 o'clock this evening.

The crowd waiting outside the conference hall burst into wild cheers and shouts as Mussolini and Hitler emerged on the balcony of the Fuehrer's house where they saluted and chatted on the prominent balcony facing a monument dedicated to the Nazi Socialists killed in the rise of the movement to power.

Dictators Leave Munich

After saluting the crowd again, both dictators again entered the house.

Shortly afterwards it was reported they had both left Munich for an unspecified destination and it was not made clear whether they left together or separately. Semi-official quarters here said aside from the personal eminence of Marshal Petain and their respect for him, the terms of the armistice reflect, to some extent, the resentment of the Axis powers against France. It is indicated that this resentment is directed particularly announcer said that the battle

Listener-in

-Thirty Years ago there Was no Haw-Haw

EARLY in 1909 a white-haired village schoolmaster in Northamptonshire was living in a wonder world of his own discovery.

Science had found a new marvel—a method by which messages could be sent through the air for hundreds of miles without the aid of wires, carrier pigeons or beacon lights. Frank Henry Wright, scientist, painter, astronomer, musician, writer—a lonely man in the isolated village of Buchebroc (vulgarised to Bugbrooke) Northamptonshire—had ferreted out the mystery of sound waves. In the quiet of the night he listened to the secrets of the air-the "pin-ping" of the Morse code from hundreds of miles away.

Many months of failure preceded his moment of triumph, but early one March morning the secret was yielded to him.

·Every morning his son had been posted at one end of the schoolroom to work a small, home-made electric tapper. His father was at the other end of the schoolroom, his eager eyes fixed on what seemed to be a compass.

Victory

On this particular morning there was a development which made the son's eyes open in astonishment. His usually dignified father suddenly flung up his arms with a shout: "I've got it—the hand has moved! Work that tapper!"

One day a pole, fifty feet high, was planted in the playground and beech tree. In 1910 the schoolmaster and his pupils were listening to Morse code messages from North Germany, France, Cleethorpes and Poldhti (Cornwall).

Home-made Apparatus

The copper wire induction collwas wound on a wooden rolling kitchen tray; earthenware inkpots from the school desks were used as insulating spools. Other components were medicine bottles and jam jars.

The earth wires were passed through a window ledge by the medium of the neck of a vinegar bottle eracked off the main body, Eurphones, the only items of real expenditure, were obtained from leaked into the outer world. Letters of inquiry reached him from America, Australia, Canada, and other countries.

News of the schoolmaster's radio

Learned scientists and professors visited the village school. They looked at the medicine bottles and jam jars, and listened at the earphones. Some of them admitted that pet theories had been upset.

Secret Attic

Frank Henry Wright was the first amateur radio listener in Britoin. Throughout the war he listened-in. The authorities had, as they thought, removed all his equipment when the war broke out, but the village schoolmaster heard all the hot news first-hand in a secret attle at the school-house. He had no outside visible aerial. Frank Henry Wright died as the war ended. Radio was still then in its Morse code infancy. "I am convinced," he said to his son, "that soon people will speak to one another by wireless. I have occasionally heard human voices among the Morse."

A young newspaper editor, still in his twenties, sits working throughout the night in an office in foraway Kuala Lumpur, Federated Malay States. "I have bought a radlo," he

That young man in Frank Henry Wright's grandson.

many what is she likely to gain and what to lose? In the first place her profit will depend on Germany. Italy is the junior partner of the Axis. But certain propaganda maps which were published at the time of the Munich crisis clearly showed that Italy was to be rewarded with a large Mediterranean sphere of influence, including Southern France, Greece, Spain, and the whole North African littoral. But she was significantly not to be given Yugo-Slavia. Hitler was to keep that as his Mediterranean exit.

(4) From her air and naval bases she is attacking. Malta and, from the Dodecanese Islands, the British and French forces in the Middle East and

On the other hand, Italy instantly lost: (1) All her sea borne trade with the outside world by the closing of the Mediterranean at Gibraltar and Suez.

(2) Her Abyssinian Empire. (3) Her North African province of Libya. This will be attacked both by the French from Tunisia and the British from Egypt.

Italy's participation in the war may yet bring Turkey simultaneously in on the Allied side. This would effect the blockade of the Dardanelles against enemy ships and would be a counterweight to any Italian advanture in the Balkans.

The British and French navies are consident that they can deal with any Italian naval threat in spite of the fortified Dodecanese bases, the Island of Pantellaria and the possible use of the Balcaries by enemy warships. Britain and France have between them six naval bases in the Mediterranean; France has Bizerta, Toulon; Britain has Gibraliar, Malta, Alexandria and Cyprus.

The War Fund inaugurated three days ago by the "Hongkong Telegraph" and "South China Morning Post" passed the $250,000 mark this afternoon.

The South China Morning Post Ltd., this morning forwarded a cheque for $100,000 to the Hongkong Government as the first instalment, and has requested that this amount be remitted immediately to the Imperial Government.

Contributions continued to pour in this morning at an unprecedented rate.

The Hongkong Jockey Club donated $25,000 and a cheque for $10,000 was received from Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hughes. Early this morning donations of £1,000 sterling ($16,134) each were received from Mr. G. Miskin and Mr. and Mrs. Cedric

Cheque For Lakh Sent To Govt.

The following letter, with a cheque for $100,-000, was sent to the Colonial Secretary this morning:

Sir,-As you are probably aware, the South China Morning Post, Limited, has, through its two newspapers, "The China Morning and "The Hongkong Telegraph", opena Fund to assist Great Britain's war effort. It is proposed to hand the whole of the money subscribed to the Government of Hongkong for transmission telegraphically to the British Government for the purchase of aeroplanes or such other armaments as the Home Government may decide. We have pleasure in enclosing a cheque for HK$100,000.00 ' (Dollars One hundred thousand only) and would request that this be remitted immediately.

We hope to be able to send further cheques for substantial amounts in the near future.

Yours faithfully, For and on behalf of the South China Morning Post, Limited, (Signed) B. WYLIE

General Manager.

CHAMPIONSHIP OPEN AGAIN

(By "Birdie")

THE SPONTANEOUS response of the Hongkong public to the War Fund opened by this newspaper and the South China Morning Post is wonderful, and in its generosity it brings to my mind the success that Henry Cotton and his fellow professionals are experiencing in similar directions at Home. At the time of writing, the local Fund is over $100,000 (it is only a day and a half old) and in England, Cotton's exhibition Swimming matches on behalf of the British Red Cross Fund has reached £14,000 ($224,000).

West of Scotland golfers maintain their record for high donations. On June 2 at Troon, Cotton partnered Alexander Kyle (amateur champion) against Richard Burton (open champion) and James Adams (professional to the Royal Liverpool Club, Hoylake, and native of Troon), and over £400 was raised.

It may have started at Beaconsfield Club, Buckinghamshire, where Cotton collected a further Home Cricket £5 for holing a 4-foot putt for a 2, but the generosity of present golf spectators is finding outlet in offers for "eagles" and

"birdies". About 600 people followed the match at Troon during the morning, but it was greatly increased during the afternoon. Burton enriched the fund by £15 when he "shot" an "cagle", while there were about half-a-dozen birdles which netted

SALE OF GIRL

Two Men Receive Prison Sentences

Charged with being involved in n transaction in which an 18-year-old girl was sold for the purpose of prostitution in Kwong Chau Wan, Lam Pak, 25, unlicenced hawker, and Wong Fong, 50, unemployed, appeared before Mr. Q. A. A. Maefadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy this morn-

Prosecuting, Inspector Moreton of the S. C. A. said the girl was sold by the first defendant to a brothel in Kwong Chau Wan and the money, amounting to about $600 Chinese currency, was handed over to second defendant. Mother's Report

Inquiries were made, following a report by the girl's mother, who told the Police that her daughter had written her two letters asking her to send money in order to buy her out. Defendants claimed that the girl had gone at her own free will.

Inspector Moreton said even if the girl had gone willingly it was still an offence to take part in such a transaction.

Defendants were each sentenced six months hard labour.

Conspiracy By Amahs Tried To Cover Up Robbery

A conspiracy between two amnhs employed by Miss M. Murray, of 3 Dragon Terrace, first floor, to cover up a theft of jewellery from their mistress by making a faise report to the Police was disclosed at the Central Magistracy this morning before Mr. H. G. Sheldon, when Sub-Inspecfor Darkin prosecuted the two women

Yau Tai, 23, and Lai Ling, 34, were charged with theft of the jewellery, and with misleading the Police by false information. jawellery included five gold rings set with precious stones, two gold chain bracelets, a gold watch and chain, two pairs gold earrings, two pairs gold cuff links and other articles. Wong Tse-ching unemployed gardener, was charged with aiding and abetting and on a further count of receiving stolen property. Defendants pleaded guilty.

Facts Outlined Outlining the facts, Sub-Inspector Darkin said that the first two defendants were employed as amaks at 3 Dragon Terrace, first floor, where the complainant kept house for an Italian, who had since been taken to the internment camp, and a motherless daughter.

On June 15 complainant went on a visit to the internment camp and the first defendant called in her brother, the third defendant, and suggested it was a good opportunity to steal the

When the Police were called in they found the two women bound and gagged. They said that they had been robbed by six men. The Police dld not believe this story, and on further questioning, first defendant admitted that the third defendant bound and gagged them and removed the jewellery. The third defendant's residence was searched and the jewellery was found intact in a tin box which was suspended behind a hollow

Indian Constable's Seditious Literature

"You have been found guilty on the clearest possible evidence of conduct which at any time is very, very serious—conduct which to-day, in the straits in which the Empire finds itself, is more serious than any I can find words for," said the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Criminal Sessions this morning, when he sentenced Chanan Singh, Indian police constable B15, to 15 months' hard labour on charges involving breach of the Sedition, Defence and Incitement to Disaffection

Chanan Singh was charged with (a) making preparations | Department weighing shed and waitto do an act with a seditious intention on June 1, (b) possession of 86 copies of a seditious publication, namely, pamphlets headed "Revolutionary Proclamation No. 1," and "Revolutionary Proclamation," in Urdu and Punjabi, (c) possession of an article with a view to making an endeavour to influence public opinion in a manner likely to be prejudicial to defence, and (d) possession of a document which incites to disaffection.
